

Peirce College Holds Etiquette Course To Teach Students Dos And Don'ts Of Business Lunches

By Vittoria Woodill February 19, 2020 at 7:00 pm

PHILADELPHIA (CBS) — It's not where you typically hold class. Lunch was served, with a side of etiquette, at a local restaurant for adult students from a local college.

Sometimes lunch isn't just lunch; it's business, which means manners matter.

So Peirce College partnered up with The Capital Grille on Chestnut Street to get a few students ready when they RSVP to an invitation to take a seat at a power lunch.

Once a year, students can partake in the etiquette course, complete with a full-course meal and the main dos and don'ts of attending a business lunch.

On the menu was breaking bread and thinking before you season.

The goal is not only to empower students to own the table but own the room and their future.

Link to video and story:

<https://philadelphia.cbslocal.com/2020/02/19/pierce-college-holds-etiquette-course-to-teach-students-dos-and-donts-of-business-lunches/>